

Tax Implications

1. Surrender donations are likely fully tax deductible because no goods or service are received.
2. Adoption donations are likely only deductible for the difference above the retail value of the dog adopted (which your NGRR agent can provide upon request).
3. Donations for General Fund, Memorials and Tributes, Special needs, etc., are likely fully deductible as no goods or services are received.
4. Merchandise purchases from our on line store are likely NOT deductible because we believe the retail value of buying such merchandise and having it embroidered would be close to price you paid.
5. Lottery ticket purchases are likely NOT deductible because it is considered gambling even though it's for a non-profit .
6. Lottery winnings are likely to be considered taxable income.
7. For purchase of articles, trips, services, etc., that you bought at a silent auction, only the amount (if any) above the retail value as specified on the auction ticket is likely deductible. If you bought it at less than retail value, the difference between the price and the retail value is NOT likely to be considered taxable income.
8. Event Registration fees are likely only deductible for the amount above the retail value of any goods (such as tee shirts, treats, samples, trinkets, toys, etc) handed out to registrants at the event.
